

Last week several Sudanese cities, including the capital Khartoum, witnessed a large mobilization against the military and Islamic regime who rules Sudan since 30 June 1989. The Sudanese people have suffered from the failure of this regime in managing the country for more than 29 years, as this system led the country to a critical economic condition as a result masses went out into the streets to demand the basic rights to live in dignity.

We are in Bedayaa organization support the current mobilization, peaceful protests and National voices that call for participation in demonstrations and strongly condemn the regime's policies in dealing with peaceful protests, the excessive use of force and the killing of protestors.

We also call on Sudanese citizens of all political, religious, racial, ethnic and cultural Spectra and citizen with diverse identities to stand by to support these demonstrations so that the Sudanese people can claim their rights and enjoy their freedom and dignity.

Freedom, peace and justice

The revolution is the people's choice
